WHEREAS, social distancing is recommended by the CDC to prevent the continued spreading of this illness in the community; and

WHEREAS, in recognition that there is a necessity for essential employees of the government of Guam to continue their work for the purposes of eliminating or reducing immediate threats to life, public health, or safety where their work could expose them to the coronavirus, on March 15, 2020, I ordered the Director of Administration to coordinate with my cabinet and agency heads to determine an appropriate approach by which the government may provide essential employees a temporary differential pay which expose employees to unavoidable, clear, and direct risks and hazards to their safety and health – considerations which are not otherwise addressed the position’s know-how, problem solving, accountability and the position’s salary grade allocation; and

WHEREAS, as a result, and due to the need created by the continuing COVID-19 disaster, the Director of Administration and all agency heads have recommended the implementation of a "COVID-19 Response differential pay" policy for essential employees working in areas necessary for the elimination or reduction of immediate threats to life, public health, or safety, where their work could expose them to the coronavirus; and

WHEREAS, in accordance with this policy, affected employees shall be afforded COVID-19 Response differential pay in addition to any hazardous duty differential already determined by the Guam Occupational Safety and Health Administrator ("GOSHA"); and to be calculated by a percentage of their wages; and

WHEREAS, an employee will only receive differential duty pay for the hours worked and/or exposed to a hazardous condition; and

WHEREAS, the Federal Department of Labor defines such differential pay as additional pay for performing hazardous duty or work involving physical hardship, including work duty that causes extreme physical discomfort and distress which is not adequately alleviated by protective devices; and
WHEREAS, the United States Congress is examining the possibility of providing a type of differential pay to federal employees whose work could expose them to the coronavirus, specifically Congress is examining the provision of hazard pay for federal employees who directly treat individuals diagnosed with COVID-19 or those with frequent, unavoidable contact with the public; and

WHEREAS, it is my desire to implement a COVID-19 Response differential pay policy for the government of Guam employees whose work could expose them to the coronavirus, as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic disaster; and

WHEREAS, if is further my desire to ensure that those employees whose work is necessary for government operations and cannot be performed via telework or otherwise remotely but who are required to report for duty; and

WHEREAS, the effective date of this policy shall be today, Sunday, April 5, 2020, and this policy shall remain in effect through the duration of this public health emergency; and

WHEREAS, this Administration is in full support of and requests that I Liheslaturan Guåhan enact legislation allowing for COVID-19 Response differential hazard pay to be applied retroactive to March 14, 2020; and

WHEREAS, the COVID-19 Response differential pay provided in accordance with this policy shall be paid prospectively and in consideration of the substantial benefit the affected employees are providing the island of Guam by working in areas necessary for the purposes of eliminating or reducing immediate threats to life, public health, or safety, where their work could expose them to the coronavirus; and

WHEREAS, the COVID-19 Response differential pay shall be applicable to all government of Guam employees in any department or agency regardless of their Fair Labor Standards Act (“FLSA”) exempt/non-exempt status and employees occupying permanent positions in classified or unclassified service.
